

List of Contributors

Andreas Andreopoulos is Reader in Orthodox Christianity at the Theology, Religion and Philosophy Department of the University of Winchester.

Deborah Casewell is Postdoctoral Teaching Fellow in Philosophy at Liverpool Hope University. She completed her doctoral studies in systematic theology at the University of Edinburgh in 2015, writing on the theological and philosophical background and consequences of Eberhard Jüngel's theology of the cross. She has studied at Edinburgh, Oxford, Tübingen, and the Institut Catholique, Paris, working on continental philosophy of religion and modern German theology.

Jonathan Cole is a research member of the Centre for Public and Contextual Theology, Charles Sturt University (CSU), Canberra, Australia, and a doctoral candidate in political theology at the School of Theology CSU. He has an MA specialising in Middle Eastern politics and Islamic theology from the Australian National University. He also has a BA Honours in modern Greek language and history.

Brandon Gallaher is Lecturer of Systematic and Comparative Theology at the University of Exeter. From October 2011 to December 2014 he was a British Academy Postdoctoral Fellow at the University of Oxford.

Angelos Gounopoulos is a doctoral candidate at the School of Political Science of the Aristotle University of Thessaloniki specialising in political theory and philosophy. His PhD research focuses on political theology, and more specifically the historical experience of the Latin American liberation theology.

Pui Him Ip is a doctoral candidate at the Faculty of Divinity, University of Cambridge, after an MA in philosophy at Heythrop College, University of London, and an MSci in physics at Imperial College London.

Daniel Isai holds a doctorate from the Faculty of Theology ‘Dumitru Stăniloae’ at the ‘Alexandru Ioan Cuza’ University of Iasi. His research focuses on the dialogue between theology and phenomenology, and on the theological dimension of Jean-Luc Marion’s phenomenology in particular.

Isidoros Katsos is a doctoral candidate at the Faculty of Divinity, University of Cambridge, after a doctorate in Law at the Freie Universität Berlin.

Nikolaos Koronaios studies philosophy at KU Leuven after receiving a degree in education from the University of Athens.

Marcello La Matina is Professor of Philosophy and Theory of Language at the Department of Human Studies of the University of Macerata in Italy.

John Milbank is Emeritus Professor of Religion, Politics and Ethics and President of the Centre of Theology and Philosophy at the University of Nottingham. He is the founder of the Radical Orthodoxy movement and author of many books, including Theology and Social Theory: Beyond Secular Reason.

Sotiris Mitralaxis is Assistant Professor of Philosophy at the City University of Istanbul and Visiting Research Fellow at the University of Winchester. He received his doctorate in philosophy from the Freie Universität Berlin (2014), a doctorate in theology from the Aristotle University of Thessaloniki (2017), and a degree in classics from the University of Athens.

Dionysios Skliris is a Teaching Fellow at the University of Athens after receiving a doctorate from the Faculté des Lettres et Sciences Humaines of the University of Paris (Sorbonne-Paris IV). He studied classics and theology at the University of Athens and completed a masters degree in late antique philosophy at the University of London (King’s College) and a masters degree in Byzantine literature at the University of Paris (Sorbonne-Paris IV).

Paul Tyson is the director of the Emmanuel Centre for the Study of Science, Religion and Society at Emmanuel College, University of Queensland, Brisbane, Australia.

Rowan Williams is Master of Magdalene College, University of Cambridge, and former Archbishop of Canterbury.